

Study Plan

My name is X, an ex-student of A. I have been working as an Engineer at the Department of Radio Frequency Optimization (RF) in Incotel Technology, Cape Coast, Ghana for more than three years. I was born in the city of B as the first son of my parents. In 2010, I entered University A, and majored in Telecommunication. The four years long B.sc (Bachelor of Science in Electronics and Telecommunication Engineering) program and two years M.sc (Masters of Science in Computer Science Engineering) program created solid foundation in Technology for me. I have completed my M.sc in Computer Science Engineering from Y. Now I want to develop my knowledge in the field of management.

China is an increasingly popular destination for students from around the world, with the number of international students in China doubling in the past 10 years. China is already the fourth most popular destination for travel generally and has the third-largest population of international students, behind the US and the UK. This number has been growing by an average of 10 percent a year for the past 10 years, a far quicker growth rate than any other popular study-abroad destination. Chinese universities are increasingly well respected; the number included in major global university rankings has risen significantly over the past five years, particularly compared with the UK, which has fallen in many rankings. In 2011, there were only six Chinese universities in Times Higher Education's World University Rankings, whereas in 2015-2016 there were 37, more than either Canada or Australia. Financial support is an important factor in the decision to study abroad and the Chinese government is offering a wide range of funding opportunities to attract international students, including more than 40,000 scholarships at 277 institutions. In 2015, 40 percent of all international students new to China received government sponsorship. The number of scholarships available has increased fivefold since 2006. Knowledge and experience of China is an increasingly valuable asset in many industries. Experience of China and Chinese, which is the third most popular language to learn in the world, could give me a great career boost.

Gansu Agricultural University is one of the best universities of China even the world. I want to study in MBA to get full insight of theoretical perspective of all area of business which is possible in this university. On the other hand, some of my university seniors as well as my colleagues who are studying in several universities of China make some positive comments on the environment and teaching style of Gansu, which influence me to choose the university to do my Masters there. I will pursue my Masters degree in management or related fields in Gansu University

After completion of Masters, I will come back to my home country. There are many good universities in Ghana, so that it might be easy for me to find a good position there. In recent years, Ghana Government has paid more and more attention to higher education and market research, so the condition for research and teaching is becoming better and better. I believe my China education background and connection in Ghana would make me competent to find a job as a professor in a university or institution in Ghana. I hope one day I could set up my own educational and research institution.
